

Social Jobs Partnership

---

<http://jobsearch.about.com/b/2012/02/11/social-jobs-partnership.htm>

February 11, 2012

By Alison Doyle, About.com Guide

The Social Jobs Partnership is a coalition of Facebook, employment service non-profits, and the U.S. Department of Labor. Partners include Facebook, the U.S. Department of Labor, the National Association of Colleges and Employers (NACE), DirectEmployers Association (DE), and the National Association of State Workforce Agencies (NASWA).

The Social Jobs Partnership Facebook page contains links to government run education programs, magazines for recent college graduates, and nonprofit sites for those seeking a career change. The Facebook page's wall contains helpful articles on using social networks to job search and video clips offering advice and tips.

The Social Jobs Partnership continues to develop job service initiatives; for example, the coalition plans to create systems for posting jobs on Facebook for free. The program is evolving into a comprehensive resource for job seekers of all backgrounds and experience levels, as well as a variety of employers.

More Info: Social Jobs Partnership Facebook Page